

Light Up the Darkness

The Voice of the Martyrs' 2023 IDOP short feature film, Sejun: Nepal, tells the story of a Nepali boy's journey from life in a Buddhist monastery as a preschooler to finding new hope in Christ.

Over his nine-year stay in the monastery, Sejun experienced the darkness of Buddhism at the hands of those who supervised him. When he ran away from the monastery at age 13, his family did not welcome his return. His father enrolled him in first grade since his only schooling had been studying Buddhist scriptures, and Sejun was ashamed about being so much older than his classmates. In primary school, however, Sejun met a godly teacher who shared the light of Christ with him.

BUDDHISM—“UNENLIGHTENED”

While Buddhism is more than 2,500 years old, its teachings have become more prominent globally in the last 50 years. Perceived by many to be a peaceful religion, in reality Buddhism is simply spiritual darkness.

In places like Nepal, the darkness of Buddhism is revealed as its followers work to appease spirits they know to be evil.

Buddhists also persecute Christians in their communities, and young adults who come to faith in Christ are driven from their homes. All of this is done explicitly to appease and court favor with evil spirits that we know to be demons — the fallen angels who, like their master, work only to steal, kill and destroy (John 10:10).

Please pray for our Christian brothers and sisters who are willing to pay any price to see Buddhists set free by the power of the gospel.
